HAS NEW THEORY AS TO THE MOON

ASTRONOMER BRINGS OUT NEW DOCTRINE.

A CAPTIVE OF THE EARTH

Claims He Has Mathematically Proven This Fact And That Luna Was Stratched From Space by the World.

That he had mathematically proved a discovery that the moon was a planet captured by the earth from space and not a detached portion of our globe, was the announcement made by Professor T. J. J. See, astronomer in charge of the naval observatory at Mare Island, in a report to the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, given yesterday.

He rejects entirely the long accepted theory of Laplace and Sir George Darwin, ascribing earthly origin to the moon, and declares his discovery is supported by rigorous mathematical proof, based on the methods of Hill, Poincare and Darwin.

All Planets Captured Bodies. Professor See's announcement was a further development of his discovery, announced last January, that all planets and satellites are captured bodies, whose orbits have been reduced since in size and rounded under the secular action of the nebular rotating mediana once pervading the solar system.

In the case of the terrestrial moon, however, more than usual uncertainty existed as to how this large satellite originated and a special investigation of the problem had to be made. The moon's mass is relatively very large, about one-eighth of the earth's mass, and then Darwin's argument that the moon had once been a part of the earth had to be overcome. This Professor See says he has done with entire success, and last night he announced that he had proved mathematically that our moon, too, had been captured and had come to us from the heavenly spaces.

Originally a Planet. It was, he says, originally a planet like Mercury, but not quite so large, and moved about the sun at nearly the same distance as the earth. Then it came between the sun and the earth in such a way as to enter the neck of the space resembling a bottle neck projecting from the sun's sphere of control and including the earth. This neck was quite small and narrow, but the ball of space including the earth and constituting its sphere of attraction was of considerable size. When the moon had once entered the sun's control and came into the ball about the earth it met with some resistance, and the neck became closed, so that the moon was "bottled up" under the earth's control, and could not escape. Then it has remained with the earth ever since and will always abide with us.

By revolving about the earth in the space controlled by our planet the moon has met with considerable resistance, and its orbit has become smaller and smaller and also rounder. Thus it has come nearer and nearer the earth, but never has been closer than at present. "Thus," he concluded, "Darwin's theory of the moon's detachment from the earth is overturned and an entirely new theory developed which has the support of all the highest mathematical science now known."

Assessment Rolls Are Now Completed

And Will Be Open to Inspection and Arguments Until July 5—Assessors Ready to Meet Visitors. City Clerk Roy Cummings has caused the following notice to be printed in the local newspapers:

Attention Taxpayers. The assessment rolls have been completed and will be open to inspection at the city hall until the board of review meets on July 5. The assessors will be on hand to listen to all objections and protests.

ROY CUMMINGS, City Clerk. Under the new law the board of review is practically constituted like a court and parties protesting against their assessments have to bring witnesses to testify under oath. It is therefore a rather difficult matter to secure any alterations, and property owners who think they may have been unjustly dealt with should therefore talk over their troubles with the assessors.

Chicago & North-Western Ry. Engineer Starritt laid off the half and half switch engine yesterday. Townsend relieved him.

Fireman Dawson, who returned from Milwaukee on account of sickness, has recovered and reported for work on the extra board.

Engineer S. O. Dudley was on the switch-engine last night.

Drakeham "Ed" Day has charge of the switches at the five points today.

The extra board on the Wisconsin division was filed this morning. The engineers included were: Helmsberg, Cole, Townsend and Dudley, while the firemen were: Chen, Walters, Blackshaw and Dawson.

The tank on engine 628 gave a fine imitation of a Missouri mule yesterday when an effort was made to run it up to the coal shed in order to unload the coal. Engineer Wilke was finally given the job and on the first trial, after starting somewhere near the downtown yards, got it half way up, stopped a minute to regain his breath, and boosted it the rest of the way.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Conductor Dunwiddie, Engineer Falter and Fireman Rooney took out a work train on the Mineral Point division this morning.

Fireman Duxstad came in on the dog run this morning with Engineer Allen in place of McAdiffe.

Fireman Boehm relieved Kemnath on the switch-engine last night with Engineer Webber.

Engineer Meyer and Fireman Mahoney took out the Mineral Point way freight, 105, this morning.

George Barry took his first job as brakeman on the road this morning, going out on the work train with Conductor Dunwiddie.

Brakeman Richard Barry is laying off the Mineral Point way freight for a few trips.

Carpenters are at work rebuilding the old sand shed which has been badly in need of repairs.

Electric headlights on all engines are a possibility and may be installed throughout the entire system in a short time. The road is already equipping engines on the Iowa routes in response to popular demand expressed by proposed legislation, and it is thought that the same action will be taken in Missouri where there is a similar feeling.

Reduction In Price

Labor is plentiful. Material is cheaper. Consequently we have decided to reduce the price of the Standard Hollow Concrete Building Block

In reducing the price, we have not changed the formula for making the blocks one bit. They are made according to the specifications adopted by the National Association of Block Manufacturers, and are made of better material, than any other block in Southern Wisconsin.

The block has several distinct advantages. It is waterproof. It will not turn white. It is made in several different styles of faces. Its size is 8x8x24 which is another advantage. It is made "Face Down" which is also an advantage. We guarantee that it will not crack. If you are going to use a block in your building be sure to specify "Standard." You will not only get the best block on the market, but the lowest priced block as well.

WE MEAN BUSINESS

Every man is liable to be carried away by the lure of bargains and low prices. And this is especially true in the lumber business because usually large bills are to be purchased and you want to get it where you can get the most for your money. It stands to reason that no man is going to give you $5.00 for $4.00, yet this is virtually what many people claim to do. They don't live up to these claims—they cannot and still remain in business. If the price is lower than you expected, depend on it, the quality is proportionately low. No one outside of Janesville can do anything for you that we will not be glad to do—and a man a hundred miles away is not going to give you the service that we can render you. We do not ask for your business upon the plea of "keeping the business in Janesville," nor do we expect you to pay EXTRA for our excellent service, or highest qualities, but we will furnish you an estimate on any bill of lumber you may have, and if we cannot, based upon equal quality of goods, sell it to you delivered where and when you want it, at a LOWER figure than any other concern in the world we will not expect the business. All we ask is an opportunity to figure with you when you are in the market.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"You gave on the way a pleasant smile"

And thought no more about it;

It cheered in life that was sad then

While

That night, had been wrecked

Without it;

And so for the smile and its fragrance

fair

"You'll reap a crown some time—

somewhere.

"You spoke one day a cheering word,

And passed to other duties;

It warmed a heart, now promise stirred,

And painted a life with bonanzas.

And so for the word and its silent prayer

"You'll reap a palm some time—

somewhere."

These are some of the little kindnesses, so well brought out by D. G. Hickers in a late publication. They tell the story possible to everyday experience, when the heart is tuned in sympathy with the great heart of humanity, for they are the little things which contribute so much to the joy of living.

The name of Andrew Carnegie is hounded around the world as the great American philanthropist—the man who has given away close to $100,000,000 during the past few years to endow libraries and colleges which will endure as monuments to his memory.

But Carnegie is an old man and but little was heard of him during the years of accumulation. The secret he makes in disposing of his wealth is nothing compared to the secret in many humble homes where rigid economy is practiced in order that the children may take their place in the world prepared to stand shoulder to shoulder in the conflict of life.

The notion is quite popular that wealth is necessary to accomplish ment in almost every field of endeavor, and the thought is often expressed that "if I had as much money as my neighbor what a world of good I would do," but that is a mistaken notion, for the chances are that we would simply be a duplicate of the man we envy.

The accumulation of money for the simple love of money is an absorbing process, and men who devote life and energy to it soon become idolaters, and worshipping at the same shrine they stand aloof in a class by themselves, more to be pitied than envied.

It is well for humanity that this class of men are so largely in the minority that they represent but little and that money is so abundant that they are never able to corner it.

Money in itself is like the dead engine in the roundhouse, as helpless as a handcar until the fires are kindled. Then the water in the boiler commences to sing and soon the big machine throbs with life, but

helpless still until the man in the cab opens the throttle and applies the power; then the engine becomes a thing of life, and as she pounds the rails at a gallop pace across the continent no thought of helplessness is suggested.

During the panic of 1893 a frightened depositor called at a local bank and demanding his money, and $1,000 in gold was paid him over the counter. Two years later he made an investment, bringing into the office a sack, moldy and rotten, containing the coin which had been buried in his collar.

This little pile of gold represented a small dead engine, so dead that it had not even furnished employment for a wiper to keep it from tarnishing. It was like hundreds of millions of other money, helpless and useless because hid away in a napkin.

The humble dollar is the dollar of commerce, and it represents money in action, accomplishing its best mission. A $10 bill will pay $100 indebtedness in a day, and he back in the pocket of the man who started it out in the morning.

When the money stringency struck the country in the fall of 1906, and all sorts of make-shifts from cashier's checks to clearing-house certificates, were resorted to, much was said about an elastic currency, and congress was induced to make provision for $500,000,000 emergency currency to be issued on demand, but as time went on it was discovered that confidence was the only thing lacking, and when that was restored there was no scarcity of money.

The discovery was also made that a small amount of currency supplies the wants of any city, when kept in circulation. The Saturday pay-rolls are distributed among the merchants and by the middle of the week the same money is back in the banks, where it started, to be used a few days later for the next pay-roll.

The nation has a limited number of millionaires, and a few of them are philanthropists, but it has an army of manufacturers and employers, who invest capital and brain freely, furnishing employment to the larger army of workmen.

This kind of work is seldom called philanthropic, but it is worth more to humanity than all the fortunes invested in charity, for it preserves independence and develops manhood by helping men to help themselves.

The man who invests his money in bonds, satisfied to clip coupons and live at ease, is a cypher in any community, but the man who kindles furnace fires, and sets in motion the busy wheels of industry, is an active cog in the world's great machinery, not always appreciated.

There is another realm, outside the world of finance and commerce, where every man may be his brother's equal, if he will.

It is in the arena where men meet on the level, and where childhood and old age and the helpful influence of womanhood vie with each other to make the world brighter, and life worth living.

The realm of human kindness, where millionaires are not ruled, because the coin of the domain is not computed in dollars, and the bonds are always above par, for they are the bonds of love and friendship.

A kingdom where giving does not improve, and where every investment is not only safe but assures a profit. The pleasant smile dispels a cloud and brings to the heart of the traveler a note of joy and gladness. The kindly word renews hope and brings to the life of a discouraged brother new ambition and strength of purpose. The thoughtful deed comes like a ray of light to the weary wayfarer, and gives new courage for the journey.

And so the little things, within the reach of every mortal, are the silent forces which push humanity up the rugged incline, and make life worth while.

PROSPERITY OUTLOOK

The outlook for another era of prosperity is bright and promising, and many lines of industries are already feeling its influence, while others are simply waiting for the new tariff schedule to determine values and establish a basis for prices.

The question which just now interests the business world is not so much a reduced tariff as a speedy adjustment, and this fact is recognized by congress.

Manufacturers are obliged to make contracts ahead for raw material and this they are unable to do, especially in steel and iron, until the new schedule is adopted.

The two years of partial depression resulted in clearing up the market, on almost every line of goods, and there is no surplus stock in the country today.

The new steel plant at Cary, the most complete in the country, is preparing to double its capacity, and every effort is being made to rush the new buildings and equip them in time for next year's business.

The railroads, which use more than half the product of the steel and iron mills, are again in the market as liberal buyers, after two years of stagnation, and enforced economy, and the building trades are also coming to the front.

The new national administration has won the confidence of the business world, and President Taft, unlike his predecessor, is not a disturber nor promoter of radical reforms.

Legislation will be just, but not erratic, and an era of sanity is already established. The next decade is full of promise for both the business and industrial world, and labor of all kinds will share in the benefits. The question of saving is just as important as the question of earning, and men who are disposed to practice it will be well rewarded for there will be no lack of employment at liberal wages for years to come.

It is rumored that the democratic member of the State Board of Control may be replaced. Mr. Gro-phor has held the job for ten years or more, with only one vacation, and that was when the governor excused him long enough to run for congress against tobacco, and when defeated rewarded him by reappointment. The state will manage to jog along with-out his services, but Senator La Follette will miss his pet member on the board.

Baseball a Cure for Conceit.

I can run, jump or kick

To my own satisfaction.

I can fiddle a tune

That's correct to a fraction;

I can bowl with the best,

That's no trifle at all;

But I wish I could play

A fine game of baseball.

I could row a small boat

On the waves of the ocean;

I could fight pretty well

If I took such a notion;

I'm an athlete all round,

But my pride had a fall.

When I tried to make good

At the game of baseball.

I was sure I'd be there

When it came to the pinches

And could drive the ball out

Fast to other men's inches;

Yes, I thought that I could,

But I sadly recall

How I lost all conceit

At a game of baseball.

I was up in the ninth,

And the fans were all yelling,

I was glad, and great hopes

In my bosom were swelling,

For to hit was to win

But the thing looked so small,

It was more like a pen

Than a full-sized baseball.

In the Valley of the Past.

Dear sweet girl, the darkness gathers

As I sit and think of you,

Will you go with me, in fancy, back to where life's sky was blue?

A NEW TOOTH

Can be fitted in your mouth which will match your own teeth so perfectly in color and size as to defy detection.

I use a delicate gold backing, out of sight—which holds the new tooth securely and firm.

This work is durable.

It is lasting.

It is handsome.

The price is reasonable.

It would make you look years younger.

ORIGINAL STUNTS TO BE PRODUCED

NONESUCH BROS. PARADE WILL BE BIGGEST EVER HELD IN CITY.

MANY NOVELTIES ARE READY

With Plenty of Music—Three Big Parades. Good Speaking in the Park and Illuminations and Fireworks—Day Promises to be a Busy One. Visitors to Janesville are promised the biggest kind of a celebration of the National's birthday this year on Monday, July 5th.

According to the official press agent of the monster shows, Chas. Putnam, "it will be bigger, better, grander, more elaborate than ever. Three big parades, miles long, bands so many you can't count them, street shows, with speaking in the park and something doing every minute."

There is no doubt there will be something doing every minute. It has something along the line of the construction of the cages for the wild animals, the painting of the band wagons, the arrangements for the Wrong Bros. Acrobats, the bringing together of the famous impersonation of Roosevelt's hunt through the jungles of Africa with Teddy himself at the head of the wondering natives, are all being rushed.

Then the first real circus has begun. With Barnum & Bailey's approach for their show on July 30 the "flying squadron" of the Nonesuch Bros. greatest aggregation has met with competition. The Barnum men are experts in their business but so are the Colonels and by the middle of next week every resident of Rock, Green, Walworth and even into Lafayette county will know that Janesville will celebrate on July 5th.

With the announcement that the first airplane to be purchased by anyone in this country for his individual use was bought in New York yesterday by A. P. Warner of Beloit, the arrangement committee are trying to bring the machine here for an actual test on the July 5th. Thus far the test has not been reached by telegrams but it is hoped arrangements can be made.

General Chairman Wortendyke wishes attention called again to the subscription list and states it is going to take more money than ever to celebrate this year and that more will have to be subscribed in order to make it a success.

Chairman Elden of the automobile parade is saying nothing about his plans but it is understood that he has something unusual up his sleeve this year that promises to outdo the parade of two years ago in beauty and size. Dr. Elden is very secretive about it but he figures that it will be a steam wonder.

Chairman Eugene Fish of the morning parade is most anxious to have his parade a big one and has promises of many large floats and displays for the occasion. However, there is always room for one more in the line and he would be glad to hear from all who will have a part in this feature of the day's entertainment.

Chairman Clomons, of the amusement committee, is not yet decided as to the stellar attractions but insists that they will be even better than the 1908's. Minstrels and everyone will laugh more than they did then. There are any number of species of amusements that can be secured that will be good entertainment.

In fact all along the line everything indicates a lively interest in the day's events. There is apparently no luxury in the affairs and Chairman McKee of the Nonesuch Bros. parade says that he is receiving new recruits each day.

"Off some of the stunts to be pulled off," he said this morning. "I don't mind telling what they are as they will be all the better when the time comes. However, I want more and will need every team and wagon I can get hold of."

The speaker of the afternoon has not yet been decided upon but it will be some gentleman of prominence throughout the state or nation. Senator La Follette was forced to decline owing to the necessity of his being in Washington.

Poisons Dangerous to Make.
A good many poisons are dangerous to manufacture. Mercuric chloride, for instance, brings madness to those who work too long at making it. A gas rises from it that is not immediately fatal, but which causes temporary insanity, which may, of course, become permanent.

QUALIFYING SCORES

Members of the St. Ignace Golf Club are much interested in the opening play for the Wilson Lane Cup on Tuesday next.

The members of the golf committee, George Baumann, Mrs. H. G. Carter, George E. King and Edward Peterson have posted a notice that all qualifying scores must be handed in to the committee by Sunday, June 27th, so that the pairing can be made. Tuesday is the regular club day at the links and the club will have a social gathering at the clubhouse during the past few days and the popularity of the new porch is now assured.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Soldier Boys Went Through: A company of soldier boys, sixty-five, of Company C of the First Wisconsin Regiment of Whitewater were in the city today, coming down on the train from Milwaukee and being transferred to the Madison train on the St. Paul road to join the rest of the company of the 1st Regiment in the annual encampment at Camp Douglas. A passenger coach and a baggage car transported the men and their effects. Accompanying the soldiers was Lawrence Thiele, of this city, who will be leader for the company during their stay at the camp.

Game Postponed: The baseball game which was to have been played yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park between Kelly's business men's nine and Levy's team was postponed on account of the wet condition of the grounds.

Washed Out Bank: T. J. Lloyd of this city returned today from Rockford where he went to look after some flats which he owns there. The storm of Thursday night washed out the bank at the rear of the flat buildings and necessitated the building of a sixty-foot stone wall. Collars in that vicinity on that night were filled in about twenty minutes, so strong was the downpour.

Alleged Thieves Released: James Moran and Charles Schmidt, the two holers who were arrested yesterday on the charge of stealing rings from E. E. Williams' jewelry store, were given a severe "swearing" this morning but resolutely denied the charge against them. A careful search of the two holers today failed to bring the taken into custody failed to bring the jewelry to light and as the evidence against them was insufficient to convict, they were released and given ten minutes to leave town.

Attention Taxpayers.
The assessment rolls have been completed and will be open to inspection at the city hall until the board of review meets on July 5. The assessors will be on hand every day to listen to any objections and protests.

Change in the head of Indian affairs. Robert G. Valentine succeeds Francis E. Leupp as commissioner of Indian affairs.

Washington.—Francis E. Leupp has tendered his resignation as commissioner of Indian affairs and Robert G. Valentine has been appointed to succeed him. Mr. Valentine is at present Mr. Leupp's assistant, and has made a close study of the problems connected with Indian affairs. He is fully fitted for the work in view for him.

With the resignation of Mr. Leupp the department loses one of the most efficient heads it has ever had. He was widely known as an editor and writer and since assuming the office of commissioner of Indian affairs in 1905, he has made a name for himself with the public. He has just passed his sixtieth year and during a very active life has devoted his energies largely to journalistic work.

Mr. Leupp is a graduate of Williams college and Columbia law school. During his newspaper career he was connected with the New York Evening Post, Syracuse Herald and he edited an official organ for the National Civil Service League, Good Government. It was under President Cleveland that Mr. Leupp first received recognition by the government and was appointed a member of the United States board of Indian commissioners in 1892. His book, "The Man Roosevelt" and his memorial volume to William Cullen Bryant have attracted national attention.

WITH A GAS RANGE

there is every opportunity to cook things in countless ways. The range will give any desired heat and is equipped to perform any method of cooking instantly.

With a gas range the constant fixing of the fire is done away with. You leave your range when you are done cooking, and when you come back to prepare the next meal, it is ready for instant heat again. No fuel has been wasted in starting or after the meal is cooked. There is no dust, dirt, ashes accumulating, and the room is cool and healthful.

A cabinet gas range, as illustrated, has 5 burners—one double burner, three single burners and one simmering burner, a baking oven, a warming oven and broiling oven, all heated with same burner. The ovens are placed high, obviating the necessity of stooping. The range is built high, permitting easy sweeping of floor under in. It is fitted with hood. The cost is $30.00; other style gas ranges at $13.50 and up. Terms, 13 cash and the balance in six equal monthly payments. All styles of gas ranges are shown in our display room.

FROM THE READY TO WEAR SECTION.

Women are taking considerable interest in the two great lots which we are closing at $11 and $17. It is an opportunity that comes seldom. The suits are A No. 1 in every respect. All the season's latest productions, not the loud, flashy styles often seen and very near heard, but sensible drossy suits that you would take pleasure in wearing after the newness is worn off.

THE CHANGES IN STYLE between these suits and those that will be worn this fall are not radical. In many instances they are very much the same.

THE SAVING, by buying now, you can figure yourself by comparing the prices $11 and $17 with the figures below. Look this list over carefully. Bring it in with you, as several have done, select the suit you think you would like and see how it looks. It is any easy thing to do and costs you nothing. Our time is yours. Don't put it off too long as the very suit you desire may be gone.

MILAN, RICHEST CITY OF ITALY

AND ITALIAN LAKE COUNTRY DE-SCRIBED BY MISS SHERER.

VENICE THE DREAM CITY

With its Glistening Cathedral and the Songs of Gondoliers Also Received Tribute in Her Latest Letter.

Venice and St. Mary's, Milan and its celebrated Gothic cathedral, and the turn of the Italian lake country all receive attention in the most recent letter received from Miss Clara Helle Sherer, whose previous epistles have afforded much pleasure to Janesville readers. The missive was written on June 9 and the full text follows:

As you see, I am now in Milan, the richest city in Italy and next to the largest. Naples has the greatest population, though Milan seems the larger of the two.

We arrived last night, after a half day's journey from Venice, which was fairly comfortable only, as we had but two compartments and eight people in each. It was pretty hot.

On our arrival we jumped into automobiles and drove to the hotel, and down along over the smooth pavements, past the street cars and crowds of people and looking our horn.

Found the hotel extra nice with the prettiest salon, with its fountain surrounded by plants, in the center, and nice chairs and cushions all about. There is a parrot who talks in French to Aunt Cole and a large cage of many pretty song birds.

Last night, after dinner, we all went out on the street, into the worst mess you ever saw, to witness the celebration of the city. Such gorgeous lights as there were in front of all the buildings, candles, lanterns and colored electric lights, great festoons of flowers, draperies and flags hung all about and there were parades and demonstrations. The celebration was somewhat like our Fourth of July, distinguished by the freedom of Lombardy, of which it is the capital.

We do happen upon more great festivals on other holidays, everywhere we go. Lucky people!

This morning we visited the celebrated Gothic cathedral, which is one of the largest in the world and holds about forty thousand people.

The roof which is marble like the rest of the building is adorned with ninety-eight chandeliers and the sides of the buildings with upwards of two thousand statues in marble. The effect of the whole is almost fairy-like.

We climbed away up to the roof, up stairs and stairs and found it perfectly beautiful there.

The interior was grand and at first I was inclined to like it better than St. Peter's, but decided that the two could not really be compared.

There are fifty-two columns, each sixteen feet in circumference, the floor is of marble mosaic and the windows are exquisite with stained glass.

From there we went to the Palazzo della Giustizia, which contains a famous picture gallery, some of the principal treasures in addition to Raphael's "Sistine of the Virgin" and a few good examples of the Venetian and Northern schools are the frescoes, cut out of churches and pictures, of the Lombard school.

Today we also visited the Museo Poldi-Pezzoli, which was bequeathed to the city by a man of that name.
It contains valuable paintings, Portuguese rugs, weapons, and other antiquities, and the most magnificent woodwork, all hand carved and inlaid with pearl.

It far surpasses all the numerous palaces we have seen and it is hard to realize that an ordinary person ever lived there.

The object of interest in the convent church of Santa Maria della Grazia is the celebrated "Last Supper" of Leonardo da Vinci. The picture, painted in oils on the wall, is now terribly defaced. People were flocking there to see it.

From there we took carriages for a ride through the parks and about the city and afterward walked through the Galleria and shops. The weather has been perfect here and we only hope that it will not rain while we are at the lakes. Tomorrow we leave for Lake Como.

Italian Lakes
Lugano (Paradise).
Well certainly this is like Paradise,
the loveliest of all the lovely places
I have seen, though I suppose you think I am crazy to rave over each place a little more than the one before.

Lake Como was charming, with its soft and pretty scenery, but I love the grandness of Lugano, with the rugged mountains and all. We arrived here yesterday afternoon in the pouring rain, but reaching the hotel, found everything delightful. The hotel itself is beautiful, by far the prettiest and, I think, the nicest I have ever seen or Aunt Cole either.
The view over the lake is superb, the scenery being Italian in character. Numerous villages and country seats are scattered along the banks of the lake, the lower hills are covered with vineyards and gardens, which contrast beautifully with the dark green chestnuts and walnuts above them and the tops of the mountains are covered with snow, which glitters in the sunlight today.

Launches, rowboats and steamers are lifting about on the water and we sit here by the window I look out onto a long walk, sheltered by trees and with benches for the wanderers, toward the lake.

We took the finest excursion this morning to Mt. S. Salvatore, up the cable cars. The cable cars were straight up the mountain and it seemed as if it must break loose and go flying down, but we arrived safely.
When we reached the top we climbed farther to a pilgrimage chapel on the summit, from whose roof we beheld the most beautiful scene. It embraced the lovely lake Lugano and two other smaller lakes, the grand mountains, with their wooded slopes, which cast shadows over the waters, the pretty villas and gardens and in the quiet of the morn we could hear the church chiming from the distant valleys.

The air was so refreshing and we watched the snow on the highest Alps, actually seeing some of it melt away in the sun.

It was all so beautiful that I did not want to leave it, even if I had much more waiting us. Lunch was very nice and I ate my share you may believe.

I don't see why people say that the meals are poor over here. For we all have over them—such a variety and everything cooked to taste delicious.

Venice a Dream
Suppose you received my postal from Venice, which is just like the place, a perfect dream.

We reached there in the evening,
the loveliest time, for 'twas an ideal moonlight night, stars shining brightly and the lights about the channels were reflected so prettily in the water.

We got into the dear gondolas and our gondoliers, in white, rowed us over the gently rippling water, as they sang their sweet songs.

We finally reached the Grand hotel, which is really nice, my room facing onto a channel.

In the morning we walked out past the shops (which I am crazy over, they are so fascinating), to the celebrated church of St. Marco, a beautiful edifice decorated outside and in,
with marble mosaics, gold and bronze.
Volumes could be written of this interesting place. The hundreds of tame pigeons flock around one so thickly that it is difficult not to step on them.

That evening we took four gondolas and went out, the night being really ideal—warm and lovely. There were many parties with highly decorated gondolas, with Japanese lanterns lighted and swinging to and fro to the music of the orchestra and singing of the men and women.

The selections were from operas and sounded entrancing. The next morning dawned bright and lovely and we went to the great crowd to witness the military celebration which occurs but once in fifty years.

There was a splendid band and marching of troops, with a grand display of flags. We expected to visit the Doge's palace, but found it closed this holiday. Shall see it later.

SECTION MOTOR CAR A COMPLETE SUCCESS

Statistics Show That Recently Installed Railroad Autos Are Money Savers.

That old joke concerning the wrecking foreman, Phineas, who when told to make his reports briefest, sent the following message on the occasion of a wreck, "GRR, on again, gone again, Phineas," might be paraphrased a little to read, "Here again, there again, everywhere again," and applied to those section foremen who are the champions of the new section motor cars which have recently been put into commission by the St. Paul road. In addition to this head-on ability to get around there are many more advantages in this mode of transporting employees as is shown by recent statistics covering the saving in time and money that these cars have made possible.

If the section man does not appreciate the aesthetic value of being able to sit at ease and enjoy the scenery while chugging to work at the rate of twenty or thirty miles an hour, the company does put great value on the fact that he is fresh and vigorous when he does get to the scene of his labors, and not tired out with the monotonous grind of pushing a heavy hand-car two or three miles. Besides this, the doubtful advantage, there is a real saving in time, the company's entire section roll showing that there is a saving of $1,800 a day.

The motor car is also capable of carrying more weight. Ten men with all the necessary tools are easily transported. One of the first cars used in testing, carried ten men, drew another car carrying six men and sixty ninety-pound rails, a total weight of 5,100 pounds, and hauled this load at the rate of six miles an hour on a one and one-half per cent grade. It has a record of eighty-seven miles on two gallons of gasoline, and a speed of thirty miles an hour can be maintained when fully loaded with men and tools.

With regard to safety of operation, motor cars are less dangerous than hand-cars. With their great speed, they can distance freight trains and can readily be removed from the track by two men even when loaded with tools. In a recent test a car was run at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, stopped within forty-five feet and removed from the rails in twenty-five seconds from the time of applying the brakes. The great saving of time, which amounts to eighty minutes a day per man, greatly lengthens the section in charge of a crew, thereby reducing the number of men and crews. It also makes possible the abandonment of many tool houses and decreases the list of extra tools kept on hand. The cars are also invaluable for their ability to cover great distances in patrolling the right of way after storms.

To Remove Superfluous Hair
Dr. Almon, the prominent physician,

Miracle the only reliable preparation on the market for the removal of superfluous hair.
I have used many preparations for that purpose, but none gave me satisfaction until I tried Dr. Miracle, but in it I find a preparation that will remove the hair and which gives perfect satisfaction in all cases." Bet-

VIOLET WON EASILY IN THE BALLOTING

Vote of Children of State Results in Big Plurality for Shy Woodland Flower.

In the vote for the state flower conducted by the state superintendent of public instruction, the violet was the winner, securing a large plurality over any of its competitors, and getting nearly one half of the votes cast. According to the compilation of the vote, unannounced from the state superintendent's office, the violet had 65, 536 votes; wild rose second with 29,468; trailing arbutus third, with 25,170; white water lily brings up the rear of the column with 21,633 votes.
The total number of votes cast was 140,865.

In the Janesville city schools, when the vote was taken, the favorite was the violet, which had a good-sized majority over all the other flowers.
Twelve hundred and fifty-six votes were cast for the violet in this city.
The white water lily was the next in line with 395 the wild rose held down third place with 294 votes, while the trailing arbutus was last with 148.
The total vote of the Janesville schools was 2,947.

GROWERS MAY FIND A PLANT SHORTAGE
Heavy Rains And Violent Storms Are Working Havoc With Young Tobacco Plants.

"Under normal conditions better than half the new crop in the state would have been transplanted to the fields at this writing, and yet we fear this is not the case," says the Edgerton Reporter. "Frequent heavy rains are not only delaying the field work but the damage resulting from the rotting of the plant beds is proving much more serious than was anticipated and many growers who thought they were amply protected with an abundance of hay now find their plants, so if they do not get up their neighbors, must wait until they have finished sowing before being helped out. Then, too, the violence of the recent storms has done the young plants no good. All these things are delaying the transplanting, though that portion of the crop already in the fields has had an excellent chance to get a head start."

In the market for cured leaf there is but little to report. A few scattering sales of the '08 have been effected and an occasional movement in old leaf is noted. Geo. Westworth sold a 25c lot of '07 to A. Jensen & Sons.
A deal involving a 30c lot of '07 at Janesville is said to be with pending, and a few smaller lots comprise the chief movements of the week. There is some work yet to be done about the warehouses to complete the season's handling.

"The shipments out of storage reach 502 cases and 2 cars of bundle goods from this market to all points for the week past. Since last report 8 carloads of bundles have been received."

STREET CAR NO. 13 RAMMED BY A WAGON

And Team of Runaway Horses De-longing to Charles Dietrich—Vestibule Wrecked—Nobody Hurt.

Street car No. 13, loaded with women and children, headed eastward, and with its brakes set just beyond the "Y" and the intersection of Main and Milwaukee streets, received a terrific bump about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. A team of heavy draft horses, drawing a load of loose barley, had gotten beyond the control of Charles Dietrich, the driver, on Milton avenue, and they came down the Milwaukee street hill at a terrific clip. As they reached the Main street intersection Dietrich saw that it was a choice between the street car and a buggy containing two ladies which was standing by the curb in a few yards to the northeast.
He therefore swerved the horses southward and the team and wagon-tongue struck the vestibule of the car fair and square, smashing the woodwork and glass into a million splinters and fragments and giving the passengers a jolt which they are not likely to forget for several days. Motorman Ellis McLaughlin jumped when he saw that it was too late to attempt to get the car out of the way. One of the horses went down in a heap under the car, but the other one was only thrown to its knees, and freed from the harness, immediately got up and started to make good its retreat.
The wagon tongue was broken, the runner gear wrenched and twisted, and several bushels of the barley were let out upon the street. The driver, Dietrich, who is a tenant on the Frank Mount farm, as well as all of the passengers on the car, escaped serious injury. It was necessary to transfer the passengers and take the wrecked car back to the barn for repairs.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1903, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

And as Kirkwood ducked the whip-lash shot out over the roof with a crack like the report of a pistol. Startled, the horse leaped indignantly forward. Momentarily the cab seemed to leave the ground, then settled down to a pace that carried them round the Avenue theater and across Northumberland into Whitehall place apparently on a single wheel.

"Good little horse," he applauded. A moment later he was indulging without reserve the generalship of their cabby. The quick westward turn that took them into Whitehall, over across from the Horse Guards, likewise placed them in a pocket of trouble. A practically impenetrable press of vehicles closed in behind them ere Kirkwood's conveyance could follow out of the side street.

That the same conditions, but slightly modified, hemmed them in ahead went for nothing in Kirkwood's estimation.

"Good driver!" he approved heartily. "He's got a head on his shoulders."

The girl found her voice. "How," she demanded in a breath, face blank with consternation—"how did you do that?"

"Easy!" he echoed exultantly, and in his vehemence was running like liquid fire. "What wouldn't I dare for you, Dorothy?"

"What have you got?" she amended softly, adding, with a shade of timidity, "Philip?"

The long bodies swept up from her cheeks, like clouds revealing stars, unmasking eyes radiant and brave to meet his own. Then they fell, even as her lips drooped with disappointment. And she sighed, for he was not looking. Manlike, but with the order of the chase, he was deaf and blind to all else.

"I've got a scheme!" Kirkwood declared so explosively that she caught her breath with the surprise of it. "There's the Press. They know me there, and my credit's good. When we shake them off we can have the cabby take us to the hotel. I'll register and borrow from the management enough to pay our way to Chiffonier and the tolls for a cab to New York. I've a friend or two over home who wouldn't let me want for a few miserable pounds. So you see," he explained boyishly, "we're at the end of our troubles already."

She said something inaudible, holding her face averted. He bent nearer to her, wondering. "I didn't understand," he suggested.

Still looking from him, "I said you were very good to me," she said in a quivering whisper.

"Dorothy!" Without his knowledge or intention before the fact, he instinctively as he made use of her given name intimately, his strong fingers dropped and closed upon the little hand that lay beside him. "What is the matter, dear?" He leaned still farther forward to peer into her face. All glance met glance in the ending of his racing pulses tightened with sheer delight of the humil happiness in her glancing eyes. "Dorothy, child, don't worry so. No harm shall come to you. It's all working out—just working out right. Only have a little faith in me, and I'll make everything work out right, Dorothy."

Gently she freed her fingers. "I wasn't," she told him in a voice that quivered between laughter and tears. "I wasn't worrying. I was—"

"I wasn't worrying. I was—"

"I wasn't worrying. I was—"

his side pocket. Calendar's revolver was still there. Dorothy should with away clear if—if he swung for it.

He bent forward with the traveling bag in his hands.

"We'll have to drop off in a minute. The horse won't last. They're in the same box. I'll undertake to stand 'em off for a bit. You take the bag and run for it. Just as soon as I can convince them I'll follow, but if there's any delay you call the first cab you see and drive to the Press. I'll join you there."

He stood up, surveying the neighborhood. Behind him the girl lifted her voice in protest.

"No, Philip, not I won't leave you."

He shook his head in silent contradiction, frowning, but not frowning because of the girl's mutiny. He was a little puzzled by a vague impression.

The hansom was traversing a street in Old Brompton, a quiet, prim, busy-lined with dwellings singularly old-worldly even for London. He seemed to know it subjectively, to have retained a memory of it from another existence.

Calendar's cab was drawing perilously near, and he was debating whether or not they should alight at once and try to make a better piece when the decision was taken wholly out of his hands.

Blindly staggering on, withered with weakness, the horse stumbled in the shafts and plunged forward on its knees. Quick as the driver was to pull it up, with a cruel jerk of the bits, Kirkwood was caught unprepared.

Lurching against the dashboard, he lost his footing, grasped frantically at the unstable air and went over, bringing up in a sitting position in the gutter with a solid shock that jarred his very teeth.

For a moment dazed, he sat there blinking. By the time he got to his feet the girl stood beside him, questioning him with keen solicitude.

"No," he gasped, "not hurt—only surprised. Well."

Their cab had come to a complete standstill. Calendar's was no more than twenty yards behind, and as Kirkwood caught sight of him the fat adventurer was in the act of lifting himself ponderously out of the seat.

Incontinently the young man turned to the girl and forced the traveling bag into her hands.

"Run for it!" he begged her. "Don't stop to argue. You promised—run! I'll come."

"Philip!" she pleaded.

"Dorothy!" he cried in torment.

Perhaps it was his unquestionable distress that weakened her. Suddenly she yielded, with whatever reason. He was only hazily aware of the swish of her skirts behind him. He had no time to look round and see that she got away safely. He had only eyes and thoughts for Calendar and Stryker.

They were both now and running toward him, the one as awkward as the other, but neither yielding a jot of their malignant purpose. He held the picture of it oddly graphic in his memory for many a day thereafter.

To this mental photograph another succeeds of the same scene an instant later, all as it had been before, their relative positions unchanged save that Stryker and Calendar had come to a dead stop and that Kirkwood's right arm was lifted and extended, pointing at the captain.

So forgetful of self was he that it required a moment's thought to convince him that he was really responsible for the abrupt transformation. Incredulously he realized that he had drawn Calendar's revolver and pulled Stryker up short in midstride by the mute menace of it as much as by his hoarse cry of warning:

"Stryker, not another foot!"

With this there chimed in Dorothy's voice, ringing bell clear from a little distance:

"Philip!"

Like a flash he wheeled to add yet another picture to his mental gallery.

Perhaps two score feet up the sidewalk a gate stood open. Just outside it a man of tall and slender figure, rigged out in a blarney costume consisting mainly of a flowered dressing gown and slippers, was waiting in the attitude of singular impassivity. With a foot lifted to the doorpost, his hand, his head turned as he looked back, was Dorothy.

As he comprehended these essential details of the composition the man in the flowered dressing gown raised a hand, beckoning to him in a manner as imperative as his accompanying words.

Kirkwood choked on a laugh that was half a sob. "Brentwick!" he cried, restoring the weapon to his pocket and running toward his friend. "Of all happy incidents!"

"You may call it that," retorted the older man, with a fleeting smile, as Kirkwood slipped inside the doorway. "Come," he said, "let's get into the house."

"But you said—I thought you went to Munich," stammered Kirkwood, and so thoroughly impregnated was his mind with this understanding that it was hard for him to adjust his perceptions to the truth.

"I was detained—by business," responded Brentwick briefly. His gaze, weary and wistful behind his glasses, rested on the face of the girl on the threshold of his home, and the faint, sensitive flush of her face deepened.

He stopped and honored her with a bow that, for all his fantastical attire, would have given a hint of an earlier decade. "What you've pleased to 'editor' he suggested punctiliously. "My house, such as it is, is quite at your disposal. And," he added, with a glance over his shoulder, "I fancy that a word or two may presently be passed which you would hardly care to hear."

Kirkwood lingered with his friend upon the door stoop. Calendar, recovered from his temporary consternation, was already at the gate, bending over it, fat fingers fumbling with the latch, his round red face lifted to the house, darkly working with eagerness.

From his threshold, watching him with a slight contraction of the eyes, Brentwick hailed him in tones of elocutionary courtesy:

"Do you wish to see me, sir?"

The fat adventurer faltered just within the gateway. Then, with reluctant swerve, "I want my daughter," he declared vociferously.

Brentwick peered mildly over his glasses, first at Calendar, then at Kirkwood. His glance lingered a moment on the young man's honest eyes and swung back to Calendar.

"My good man," he said, with subtle tolerance, "will you be pleased to take yourself off—to the devil if you like? Or shall I take the trouble to interest the police?"

He removed one fine and fragile hand from a pocket of the flowered dressing gown long enough to jerk it significantly toward the nearer street corner.

Thunderstruck, Calendar glanced hastily in the indicated direction. A blue coated baby was to be seen approaching with measured stride, diffusing upon the still evening air an impression of ineffably capable self-containment.

Calendar's fleshy lips parted and closed without a sound. He banged the gate behind him and waddled off to join the captain, who already, with prayerworthy native prudence, had fallen back upon their cab.

Suddenly extracting money from his pocket, he paid off his driver and in company with Stryker trudged in morose silence down the street.

Brentwick touched Kirkwood's arm and drew him into the house.

Building Up America's Fleet.

Outside Europe, the United States has been most active in the development of the big battleships. At the present moment, while England possesses, built or building, 22 battleships or battleship-cruisers of upward of 15,000 tons, the American fleet possesses 6 of 16,000 tons built, 2 of 16,000 building, 4 of 20,000 tons are under construction, and 2 more authorized during the present year, which, it is understood, will displace about 20,000 tons and will, therefore, be the largest battleships hitherto planned by any naval power. All the eight American ships built or building represent the all-American principle.—Cassell's Magazine for May.

WITH THE PLEASURE SEEKERS AT THE ALASKA-YUKON-PACIFIC EXPOSITION. TYPICAL SCENE ON PAY STREAK.

(By Special Correspondent.)

Seattle, Wash.—Ride on the Ticket!

Take a trip through Fairy Gorge!

Such are the cries of the barkers along Pay Street, which attracts hundreds of visitors to the land of fun and gaiety at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

"Pay Street" will go down in the history of the world's great fairs as unique. It has combined the best features of previous fairs and added many new ones. Hundreds gather hourly around what is known as the "Fairy Gorge Ticket," one of the many attractions. The yells of delight from the cars as they swing around the sharp bends and from those watching proclaim the pleasure of one side of the great Seattle fair.

The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition has broken many records and demonstrated the hustle of the west. First of all it was completed in a remarkably short time, requiring only a little over a year and a half to transform a forest full of hills and gullies into a fairyland. Then it has established a new record among world's fairs by being entirely completed on the day of the opening. The beauty of its natural and artificial environs has never been exceeded, and, best of all, it will be one of the few fairs to come out financially whole.

The attendance during the first few weeks has far exceeded the expectations of the management. These visitors come, they enjoy themselves and go away boasting the fair.

While the many really great points of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition have been dwelt upon, the amusement and has been little heralded and it is really one of the many interesting features. Pay Street is a success and is rightly named, for no one ever goes away without feeling he has had an afternoon of unalloyed pleasure.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

A BABY is not a vaudeville performance.

And the lovelier and more thoroughly any baby's adoring parents grasp that fact, the more chance he has of growing up in a normal way.

I was visiting at a house the other day where there is a very bright and very adorable baby.

He is a year and a half old and he has an unusually large number of the cunning tricks that babies pick up or are taught.

He explains that he is "Jennie's baby" when his maternal grandmother, who rejoices in that Christian name, asks him whose baby he is.

He squints up his eyes and wrinkles his nose on request, says "low-wow" and "baba" at the proper signals, and points out his eyes, nose, mouth and ears to anyone who is in doubt which is which among these features.

During the day which I spent with his mother, two nuns, one uncle, a bachelor friend of his father and three girl friends of his mother came to the house, and for each one the baby was asked to bring out his little box of tricks.

We sometimes hear of the over-worked vaudeville performers who do their "acts" two or three times a day but what would we think of a performer who had to go through with seven performances besides rehearsals?

I know that baby is the brightest baby that ever lived—at least I've never told so quite frequently—but I don't think even that is any justification for treating him as nothing more than a sort of human graphophone.

Nor do I think that any of the innumerable other "brightest babies that ever lived" deserve such treatment. But most of them get it.

It doesn't seem to make any difference how sensible the parents are in other particulars.

"John always thought it was wicked to show babies off," a young mother said to me the other day, "but he's just as bad as anybody now. He always says: 'Oh, I just want Mr. A. to see him,' and everybody that comes seems to be just 'the one' that must see him."

Usually no great harm comes from the practice, but once in awhile there does.

For the cute trick becomes an ugly habit that repentant parents try in vain to break.

One girl I know who as a little child used to imitate an older child's stuttering and who was urged on by the laughter of her elders, has not yet gotten over the habit she acquired then.

She has spent much time at a stutterer's school but she still stutters whenever she is excited.

Of course that's only once in awhile but your baby has just as big a chance as the next one of being the "once in awhile" baby.

And you wouldn't like that, would you?

The Next Problem of Invention.

Certainly plenty of rubbish is being talked about aeroplanes, England, forsooth, is to be deluded in a year or two by the Zeppelins. Perhaps Mars is not safe from the intrusions of the "aviators." We foretell that in a short time the new terror will be a subterranean ship which will sail through the earth as easily as the others sail through the water and air.—London Saturday Review.

DAILY DIET HINTS

OVER-EATING.

Over-eating, an almost universal practice, is best checked by eating very slowly and by reducing the number of articles eaten at a meal. If the appetite be insatiable, it is a good plan to determine how much to eat, put that amount upon the plate and eat no more. A ravenous appetite is usually a symptom of digestive disorder, and the best cure is, as a rule, to fast for a few days. To live on fruits only for a short time is very beneficial, especially in over-eating, accumulated waste, due to over-eating, deficient exercise and living during the winter in ill-ventilated and poorly lighted rooms, often makes an attack of fever necessary to cleanse the system. This may be avoided by a partial or complete fast for a period varying from one to 30 or 40 days, but an extended fast should not be undertaken save under the direction of a physician.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 26, 1868.—Our National Game.—The first match game of the season at baseball was played at the college grounds at Milton, on the 18th inst. between the second nine of the Milton club and the first nine of the Ellsworth club, resulting in favor of the former by the score of 30 to 14.

Runaway.—As a gentleman was driving down West Milwaukee street this afternoon, his horse took fright and ran, but when opposite Searle's meat market, made a sudden turn, stopped, throwing the driver into the mud, completely submerging him. No other damage.

Serious Accident.—Miss Nellie Carle, daughter of Levi B. Carle, Esq., met with quite a serious accident yesterday. Her foot slipped as she was stepping up the steps in front of the house and she fell, striking upon the foot scraper making an ugly wound in the thigh.

Festival Last Evening.—The festival at the Congregational church last evening was a success in every particular. Notwithstanding the bad state of the weather there was a large attendance and the tables neatly arranged in the parlors spoke loudly of the elegant taste of the ladies, and grounded under their burden of the ice cream, until strawberry cake and the rest of the crowd. The large audience room, out of which the stinging used for finishing the ceiling has just been taken, was thrown open, it is finished in walnut, ash, and black walnut, and the ceiling has a fine blue tint. Altogether it is one of the finest churches in the Northwest. The music by the lower City band and Mitchell's Orchestra was excellent. Especially would we note "Marching Tunes" by the former and the "Over-tune" to "Tancréd" by the latter. The children were happy singing bouquets and the people were happy in having a very pleasant sociable time.

Janesville Wool Market.—Yesterday, notwithstanding bad roads and weather, the wool market was quite lively. Messrs. Payne, Hastings & Co. took in 11 loads and say they want 100,000 pounds to fill their warehouse.

He—Yes, but I don't like it, and it deters me my friends don't like it.

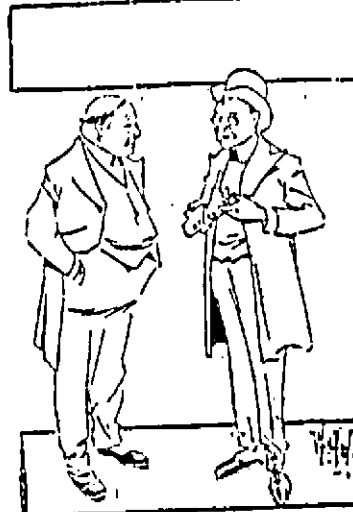

TWO TO ONE.

He—It takes two to make a bargain.
She—Yes, but only one of them gets it.

HAD THE NERVE.

"Do you consider your nerve is sufficiently steady to fit you for an airship navigator?"
Well, I've been out in a canoe with a nervous girl."

OF COURSE.
"If you do that," said Mrs. Vere, "You'll wait for me, I know."
"Oh! yes, I've always had to, dear. Most everywhere we go."
